GMAIL-OSINT: Another Useful tool

Cyber Sam

·

Follow

2 min read

·

Sep 8, 2024

Listen

Share

More

This is an additional website to help aid in your OSINT reconnaissance on Google accounts. Like Epios (see my article here) there are many sites out there that deal in finding information on Google accounts and brining you that information into one easy to use location. gmail-osint.activetk.jp is exactly that, you just have to search the first part of a gmail account and viola it there for you.

Now it may seem a bit dodgy at first, it being a website from Japan and all, but make sure you have your VPN turned on (article here if you want a free one) and also if you're using Chrome you can translate the page into English for easier use, although it's self explanatory on how to use.

The Website in English

Quick demo

Just input the account you want to search and hit "Aquisition" — I think that's a bad translation on Google's part. You will be met with something similar below:

I searched a random account for this example and have redacted the results. As you can see there are lots of areas of the account that can be visible just using this search engine:

- There is a link to my profile picture
- Full email and Gaia ID details
- What user type I am

- Google chat extended data
- Game data (nothing for this account)
- Maps data (nothing for this account)

Overall, I'd say this is definitely a tool to have bookmarked for your OSINT research, if anything to use as a backup if other sites go down or to confirm results from other tools similar to this one.

Thank You

I hope you enjoyed this article. I aim to write further about OSINT, so please consider following me, giving this article a 👏, and if you really enjoyed it consider:

🥤 Buy me a coffee

-